TUESDAY, FEB. 10, 1880 THE CHICAGO NOMINEE.

The CHRONICLE will give the nominee of the Chicago Convention be. If it is Grant, so be it. His Taylor.

13th District—Josias Gamble, W. W. Brilkant military record is one of Goddard, Alex. Haden.

15th District—John Emer', Spencer a hearty support, whoever he may proud. He stands without a superior in ancient or modern times. He possesses all the boldness and ant. genius of a Napoleon, without Napoleon's unhallowed ambition. As President of the United States for two terms, embracing one of the most trying periods in our history, although he went

If John Sherman should be man, we could hold up his able, and courageous administration of the affairs of the Treasury Department, and point to that as furnishing abundant reasons for trusting him in the White House. There are others whom we would support with enthusiastic pleasure.

But in our opinion, no man in the Republican party deserves bet ers' BLANKS for sale at this ter of the country, and no one who Office.

45 Years Before the Public. might be mentioned at Chicago could be more acceptable to the American people than Hon. E. B. Washburne, of Illinois. His long service in the House of Representatives, where he carned the soubriquet of the "watchdog of the Treasury," standout conspicuously before the country for its statesmanship. His record is absolutely without a stain, and no charge casting even a shadow over his integrity, as a private or a public man, could be made for a single moment, without carrying the lie on its face, with every intelligent person. His conduct while representing the United States at Paris, during the Franco-Prussian war, was such as to endear him to all Germans, of whatever political party. He is deservedly the most popular man in the Union with the German element of our population. If nominated, no power on earth could prevent his election, and when elected he would make a capital President.

A CORRESPONDENT suggests W. E. F. Milburn, Esq., of Greeneville, as a Republican candidate for Congress in the First District, and says of him:

"He is personally and favorably known to the larger portion of the district. There was a strong disposi-tion and a considerable move made to nominate him four years ago, but he declined to allow his name to before the Convention. That influence has spread, and wherever he is known, the people are pressing his claims to the race, and insisting on his nomina-

"As to his personal qualifications, they can not be excelled. He is in the prime of manhood, able and willing to work. He is thoroughly educated, and is a self made man. His energy, perseverance and ability are all shown by the fact that, after coming out of the war, he devoted every effort and resource at his command to educate himself, and after ten years' struggle, succeeded. He graduated with high honors from the University at Athens, and taught there several years. He also studied and took a post graduate course and a degree at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor. He is a native East Tennesseean, and is thoroughly in sympathy with the desires and necestties of our people. He was born and raised in Green county.

In 1882, though but a boy, he listed in the Federal army and served faithfully till its close. He was a brave and gallant soldier and was con-siderably promoted in his command and unwavering 'replication, was an atill as true as steed. His whole record, his character, personally, politically, socially and morally, is unblemished. Sober and industrious, he has always won the esteem of those who kney
